PART TWO: READ THE FOLLOWING PASSAGES AND ANSWER THE QUESTIONS BY CHOOSING THE BEST CHOICE.

As anyone who has suffered through a few sleepless nights might know, losing sleep can slow reflexes and fog the mind. Study volunteers deprived of just a couple of hours for a few nights in a row experienced slowed reaction times and poor concentration. The consequences can be deadly. Experts warn that lack of sleep causes hundreds of thousands of road accidents all over the world each year.

New findings have found some other good reasons to get plenty of shuteye. For instance, a sound sleep seems to be key to a healthy heart. As soon as people drift off, levels of hormones that stimulate the nervous system during the waking hours, called catecholamines, begin to ebb. The result: Blood pressure falls. Heart rate slows. Blood vessels relax, making it easier for blood to flow. Our hearts, in other words, get a much deserved rest.

Not so when study subjects are deprived of sleep. Catecholamine levels can actually climb, raising blood pressure and making the heart work harder than normal. That added burden, over time, could spell trouble.

Sleeplessness can knock the stuffing out of the body's immune system as well. Immune cells may be responsible for commanding sleep, in fact. And when we don't obey their orders, germ-fighting cells called natural killers begin to weaken.

One or two nights of bad sleep probably don't pose much danger. "However, chronic sleep deprivation might," says a neuroscientist named Carol Everson. In a recent study, she found that when rats are sleep-deprived over a three-week period, bacteria that normally reside in the gut begin to spread to organs and the bloodstream, making the animals ill, and in some cases, death can result. "That's worrying because their basic biological needs are a lot like ours," says Everson.

How much shuteye do you need to steer clear of trouble? The experts' advice is to aim for seven to nine hours a night. If you find yourself tossing and turning, ease off the coffee, tea or cola. Back off on stressful thoughts too – another sleep thief. If you still have trouble sleeping, talk to your doctor.

An elderly carpenter was ready to retire. He told his employer-contractor of his plans to leave the house-building business to live a more leisurely life with his wife and enjoy his extended family. He would miss the paycheck each week, but he wanted to retire. They could get by.

The contractor was sorry to see his good worker go and asked if he could build just one more house as a personal favor. The carpenter said yes, but over time it was easy to see that his heart was not in his work. He resorted to shoddy workmanship and used inferior materials. It was an unfortunate way to end a dedicated career.

When the carpenter finished his work, his employer came to inspect the house. Then he handed the front-door key to the carpenter and said, "This is your house... my gift to you."

The carpenter was shocked!

What a shame! If he had only known he was building his own house, he would have done it all so differently.

So it is with us. We build our lives, a day at a time, often putting less than our best into the building. Then, with a shock, we realize we have to live in the house we have built. If we could do it over, we would do it much differently.

But, you cannot go back. You are the carpenter, and every day you hammer a nail, place a board, or erect a wall. Someone once said, "Life is a do-it-yourself project." Your attitude, and the choices you make today, help build the "house" you will live in tomorrow. Therefore, build wisely!
